STATEMENT ON THE MURDER OF YOUNG TATAW BRANDY AND THE NEW MASSACRE OF ELEMENTS OF THE DEFENCE AND SECURITY FORCES IN THE ENGLISH-SPEAKING REGIONS OF THE COUNTRY

1

Blood! Crying! Horrors! Desolation!

This is now the daily life of our compatriots in the English-speaking regions of our country.

After the blunder of a gendarme that led to the death of young Caro Louise NDIALLE at the age of 4 in Buéa, it is the turn of Bamenda to experience a similar scene with the death of young TATAW Brandy, aged 7.

The day after this tragic scene, 8 elements of the security and defence forces and 1 civilian lost their lives in Mbengwi, following an ambush by separatists.

The Cameroon Renaissance Movement (CRM) extends its sincere condolences to the family of the young and innocent TATAW Brandy as well as to the families of the soldiers who are being forced into a fratricidal and murderous war.

We hold the regime in Yaoundé responsible for all these deaths: by choosing the military option to the political solution for the resolution of the crisis in the Anglophone zones, it has opted for the worst.

As we have repeatedly stated, only a frank, sincere and inclusive dialogue can put an end to this war of arrogance and contempt. One does not declare war on one's angry people, one listens to them in order to understand their concerns and with them one tries to find adequate solutions. This is the responsibility of leaders, of those who have a sense of state, a deep concern for the unity of the nation, and whose glory is not to make a display of brute force against those they are supposed to protect and elevate in dignity.

Our country cannot continue to be a nation of permanent mourning, bled by a guilty blindness. It is high time that all peace-loving Cameroonians, nourished by brotherhood, seek a solution to this unbearable national tragedy, even outside the structures of this regime.
